

Dispute resolution

1. The party that is reporting the dispute to the Membership Committee must document their side of the dispute (no documentation, no dispute).
2. The member is notified in writing of the dispute, including a copy of the documentation of the dispute, and is requested to document their side of the dispute and resolve the dispute in a timely manner. The documentation of the dispute is only for group use and will not be made public.
3. Resolution can be an agreement to disagree. This is the end of the dispute. Any further actions by either party must be handled outside of the group pursuant to the legal requirements of the situation. At no point will the group be a place to discuss or arbitrate the dispute.
4. If resolution cannot be made one or both seats may be opened.

Procedures for opening a seat

1. A vote of the officers of the group is required. A majority of officers must approve the opening of the seat.
2. Member will be notified in writing of the decision and the decision is final.
3. Once opened the member will not return to the group for any reason.
4. Dues are not refundable for any reason.
